

To the RevitCity Family of Allen Ball,

There is a quote that states “Every person we meet and every event that happens is the perfect preparation for a future that only God knows’. To know that God allowed Allen’s path to cross with all of you, who have reached out and loved us through our saddest days, is to truly see the love of God. Thank you for that love we needed so desperately.

The many posts and the generosity you have shown has meant so much to us. Words fail to express what it has truly meant to us, and the memories you shared about Allen that we can always cherish. Allen was not a rich man but he loved life and it would be hard to say which he loved more, his revit work or going hunting.

Allen was laid to rest just around the corner from his huge deer stand he built last fall, in a private and very peaceful family cemetery. It is a very old cemetery dating back to before Arkansas became a state. The donations made in memory of Allen will be given to the cemetery fund in order to help with the maintenance of the grounds. We have posted a picture of the old road leading to the Wesley Chapel Cemetery in Paron, Arkansas.

Many of the posts made by members of Allen’s RevitCity family were displayed at his memorial service and they were both humorous and insightful and illustrated that you all really are one big family. Thank you for allowing Allen to be part of such a great family.

Our heartfelt thanks, love and prayers to all,
David, Cindy and Janelle Ball
